

Get a military skills test waiver

Get a military skills test waiver [1]

If you have military experience driving commercial motor vehicles you may apply for a waiver of the NYS CDL skills road test when you apply for a CDL. To meet the requirements for this waiver, you must

- currently hold a valid New York State driver license or have a valid out of state driver license to be exchanged for a NYS driver license
- meet all other requirements to qualify for a NYS CDL (see Get a CDL [2])
- be currently regularly employed (or regularly employed within the last year) in a military position (active duty or New York National Guard) that requires operation of a CMV
- have operated a CMV of the type that the driver operates or expects to operate for at least two years immediately before
 - the application date if in active service, or
 - the date of being discharged from the military

To apply, you must present the following at a DMV office

- a completed form CDL Certification for Military Waiver of Skills Tests [3] (CDL -102)
- a valid NYS or out-of-state driver license
- a medical certificate (if required)
- proof of military service as listed on form CDL-102

You must pass all applicable written tests and pay the written test fee, permit fee and license fee. There is no skills test fee. If you meet the requirements we will issue your CDL. The class, endorsements and restrictions on your CDL will depend upon the type of CMV you operated in the military. For more information, see the Driver License Class Descriptions [4] (MV-500C).

Do it at the DMV:

You must apply for a military skills test waiver at a DMV Office.

Show "do it online" button in megamenu:

Topic:

- Commercial Drivers [5]

Related PDFs:

cdl102.pdf

mv500c.pdf

show mydmv button in megamenu:

Disable this transaction?:

yes or no survey: